I receive this error: error while loading shared libraries: libz.so.1: wrong ELF class: ELFCLASS64 A: I am, more or less, the author of the TAA-process. I just wanted to give you a clue on what goes wrong here: The gzip decompression library is usually made for 32 bits machines. Most Linux operating systems (and also *BSD) have switched to 64 bits ABI by now, which means that your system comes with a 32 bit version of zlib for (almost) sure. You need to install the 64 bit version of libz (which also installs its 32 bit version) to get the expected behaviour. So on your system you need to execute sudo apt-get install libz1:i386 to get the 64 bit version.
